MARCHIONESS OF HEADFORT.

The marquis, with the exception of the Duke of Abereom and the Duke of Leinster, enjoys the highest title in Ireland. The marquis was first attracted by his future wife while she was doing Mazle at the London Galety. As Roste Boote she was London's big hit. He asked for an introduction and proposed marriage. After the offer had been accepted there was a big protest against the match by the Marchioness of Hendfort, the mother of the marquis, and also from the King and the colonel of the Life Guards, but the marquis married her on April 11, 1901, and ever since they have lived most happily.

RICHMOND NOT A BRAIN-STORM CITY

Rockefeller Sure That He Will Not Be Pestered by Morbidly Curious While Here.

Curious While Here.

Recognizing the fact that Richmond was not a brain-storm town, and that "big men" could come here for a quiet rest without being disturbed by the morbidity curious, Mr. John D. Rocke-feller was easily persuaded to spend a few days at the Jefferson Hotel before hurrying away to the golf links at Hot Springs. In Augusta, where he has been during the winter, Mr. Rockefeller derifted about with the human tide, being free at all times from annoyance. That happened first a few years ago, and the result of it was that he included the Georgia city in his regular winter territory.

Morgan Was Left Alone.

"The good temper and decency of our people is a valuable asset," said a professional man yesterday, "and I am informed that Mr. Rockefeller decided to come here because he found that so great a man as Mr. J. Pleripont Morgan lived in Richmond for three, or four weeks without being pestered. When Mr. Morgan came to the city to attend the Episcopal Convention he naturally expected to be followed by a strange crowd. But he was not. The policeman who was employed to stand guard in front of his residence had nothing to do. Nobody attempted to break in to interview, beg or steal, and when the financier's automobile whirled about the streets the people looked up, naturally enough, and then weak about their own business. Mr. Morgan did not hear the address of Mr. William Jennings Bryan, and it is doubtful if Mr. Rockefeller will occupy a front pew at the City Auditorium on Wednesday night, when the Nehraskan begins to whoop it up for the Democratic party.

BREAK DOWN ON WAY

Colonel Murphy's Party Had to Get New Colonel Murply's Party Had to Get New Auto to See the West End.

Like most people who go forth in motor cars, Colonel John Murphy had his ups and devins yesterday. Thrilled by the sunshine and a patriotic desire to show a distinguished party of visitors the sights of the town, he secured a big automobile and went first through the old section—that section which was the real thing when he was a youngster.

In the party were President Muiry, of the National Conference of Charities and Cerrections, Judge William H. DeLacy, proxident of the Washington branch of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul; Secretary Butler and Assistant Secretary Fitzgerald, of the same organization, Mr. Muiry liked the old part of the town.

"That's very fine, too," said Colonel Murphy, "but I am going to scoot you through the West End, where they are building some. I want you to see the two pictures."

When the chauffeur swung the machine through Capitol Square, and started, out Grace Street, the colonel was calling attentior, to the various structures. Everybody was paying compliments. "Just hold them a little longer," said the host, "for I want to show you something fine."

When the car reached Third Street, the engine gave a few queer jumps. Then it censed to move. There was nothing doing, and the party tramped back to the colonel's hotel.

Not to be outdone, however, Colonel Murphy got another car and completed the tour in the afternoot.

DR. READE TO RUN

Goes Into Race as Successor to Dr. Williams in Common Council in July will not leave that body without a physician on its roll, as Dr. Frank M. Reade, of Monroe, has been persuaded to enter the race. He will succeed Dr. Williams on the Committee on Relief of the Poor, which directs the management of the City Home. Other members agree that the help of a physician is necessary, and Dr. Williams was particularly active in bringing Dr. Reade to the front. In view of the retirement of Dr. Williams, councilman John P. Lea has decided to stand for re-election.

After an enjoyable cruise down James River on their boat, "Miss Satan," Messrs, R. D. Harlow, Jr., H. C. Wash, John Davenport, Jr., and Frank Luck returned to the city on Saturday night. While away they teuched at Newport News, Norfolk, Old Point and other places.
